RALE RASIC

No 'Roos, no sparkle, Ledic for Marconi

If interest in soccer is not as high as it should be at the moment, one of the main reasons is that we have no national teams — neither senior nor youth.

The national team is the biggest publicity-grabber that soccer has.

Everyone wants to know who is in line for selection, they like to look forward to international games, and the players themselves strive hard to make that national team their goal.

We have none of that at the moment.

In fact we haven't had it since the World Youth Championships five months ago.

Instead of capitalising on those championships, the ASF forgot all about them!

The result is that the public has no idea who our international players are and there is no scope to build up such players in the media.

I urge the ASF bosses to put their heads together and think hard about this.

What soccer needs now is a programme of glamorous international matches to capture the public's imagination.

Without it, we might have to kiss the next World Cup goodbye, as we did the last two.

Yet with 24 nations qualifying now, it should be easier than ever for us to make it.

Let's not be under the mistaken impression however that money alone will get us there.

All I ever seem to read is how much sponsorship money we can expect for the next World Cup campaign.

But it wasn't money that brought success to New Zealand, nor to Kuwait, although Kuwait has money by the barrel-full.

It was hard work, determination and it was also top-class coaching that brought success to those countries.

But instead of preparing ourselves we look set to waste at least a year, the same way we wasted a year after the 1974 World Cup finals, through which the Socceroos caused enormous interest among all Australians.

More examples of soccer killing itself from within:

First the NSW State League soccer dropped altogether from Channel 7's Sydney, with PSL monopolising the coverage.

And of course British soccer still gets pride of place as well.

Yet isn't it more important to publicise State League soccer than British soccer?

Next, we see that Sydney's PSL clubs have banded together to produce a co-operative match programme.

Good move.

However, it seems not even the PSL clubs can work together. Whereas St. George, Sydney City, APIA and Marconi are a party to the programme, Sydney Olympic mysteriously is not.

Now to the bigger issues.

How ridiculous is it that the State League kicks off with Blacktown's under 16s playing at 3 pm, the same time that our senior team plays on the ground opposite?

That junior game involved 60 or 70 parents who therefore could not see the senior game. What's more important is that the junior players couldn't see the senior game either — and it's from the seniors that they should be learning.

Why doesn't the Federation finally take steps to get all juniors to play on Saturday and Sunday mornings to enable them and their parents to go to senior games in the afternoons?

Instead, we have amateurs competing with semi-pros and semi-pros competing with the so-called pros etc., etc.

Let's finally make it easier for soccer to do well in Australia. Isn't it time soccer stopped holding itself back?

The potential is there.

We have clubs and competitions which can and should be promoted much more intensively, and we certainly have the players.

They are coming through the ranks with exciting regularity. Look around: Renato Licata, Attila Carbone and especially young Tom McCullough (George's son) are doing fine things at Marconi. Socrates Nicolaidis has hit the lime-light at South Melbourne Hellas; Charlie Yankos is getting better and better at Heidelberg; Mark Barton and David Skeen are starring at St. George; Suleiman Curovic is emerging as a potential star at Footscray JUST; Tom Totakas and Robbie Dunn are big successes at West Adelaide; Ian Gray is consolidating his position at APIA, and so it goes on.

Velez Mostar captain Ledic is due to join

SOON.

But Ledic, who toured Australia with Velez in 1976, has been the best player in recent Yugoslav league matches, and one

Croatia bids for Djoni of Schalke

By CRAIG MACKENZIE

Melbourne Croatia was close to clinching the signing of crack defender Vilson Djoni as we went to press.

Djoni played for many seasons with Yugoslav First Division club Hajduk Split before crossing to rival Dinamo Zagreb.

From Dinamo the talented Djoni moved to the German Bundesliga where he was snapped up by Schalke 04, his current club.

Djoni's contract with Schalke has expired but under the rules of the German federation Schalke must continue to pay Djoni 75 percent of match fees until the defender signs with another club.

Croatia president Joe Sigur has spoken to Djoni by phone and the pair have agreed on terms. The only hitch is that Schalke is asking for a $30,000 transfer fee.

Ex-Hajduk Split sweeper Mijo Mrsic also is on the Croatia shopping list. Croatia will contact Mrsic this week at current club, Solin, in the Yugoslav Second Division.

Meanwhile Croatia welcomed two overseas recruits last Monday. They are Josip Biskic, a 22-year-old midfielder from BSK Slavonski Brod and Jozo Antolovic, a 23-year-old attacking midfielder from Olimpia Osijek.

Biskic and Antolovic leave Croatia with only one temporary visa vacancy to fill.

Either Djoni or Mrsic can come here as a guest player, the other taking up Croatia's sole temporary visa vacancy.

The Victorian Leagues kickoff this weekend amid the biggest upheaval in the history of soccer in the State.

The new-look, 14-team Metropolitan and Provisional Leagues should make for fiercer competition.

The ambitions of many clubs have been sparked by their advancement to higher leagues while more established clubs have been forced into the great player chase in order to maintain a keen competitive edge.

It should make for great seasons.

Metro glamor clubs Frankston Pines and Fawkner should just one step away from winning their way into State League and they loom as major promotion candidates in a very tough First Division.

Western Suburbs and Box Hill had high hopes going into the 1981 season but failed to keep pace with Polonia and Albion Rovers, now in State League.

No doubt the Hillmen will be well-organised, robust outfit this year while Suburbs, again coached by former Socceroo B III Vojtak, believe they can finish higher than their third placing in 1981.

Kew City, or Kew Park Rangers or Kew Celtic or whatever you are to call the club, certainly has mustered greater support from its amalgamation with the Melbourne branch of the Glasgow Celtic Supporters' Club.

Fawkner, Pines big guns as Vic. kicks off

The kingpins in Kew's rise from the depths of Metro Fourth Division, Hugh Murray and Joe Cocherty, once more lead the club into another league campaign. Paddy McElhinney's return from Morwell Falcons and Ian McNeil's switch from Hakohi give Kew more class and aggression in midfield. If Murray and 'The Doc' can come up with a top class striker than Kew should be right in the thick of the top half of the table throughout the season.

Aggression was one of the hallmarks of Preston Makedonia's State League championship winning side in 1980 when Brian Edeley was coach. No doubt Knox City hopes that Edeley's success with Makedonia rubs off. Edeley is backed by the experienced John Kennedy who recently completed a successful senior coaching course at Monash University. The pair is quite capable of building up a strong outfit in Knox.

BILLY ROGERS: KING OF THE COMEBACKS

By LAURIE SCHWAB

'By putting in the effort,

I'll get the results'

Billy Rogers may be king of the comebacks, but would he be fit enough this time?

That was the big question when Rogers returned to training with South Melbourne Hellas last week.

At 32, he's no spring chicken. And he hasn't played since the end of last season — about five months ago.

Rogers himself didn't share those doubts.

The day we talked to him, he's risen at 6.30 am for his daily two-mile run. He doesn't drink nor smoke, and he's actually taken off five pounds since he stopped playing.

He was hoping like hell that he'd get to play against his old club, APIA, last Sunday.

But whatever happened at the weekend, Rogers is set to resume his role as the midfield strong-man of Hellas.

The call went out to him after Grant Turner's return to New Zealand and after Hellas had dropped three points from two games, against Sydney City Hakoah, and West Adelaide Hellas.

Rogers had quit at the end of 1981 to concentrate on his plumbing business and because he was sick of the travel back and forth from his home at Launching Place, about 60 km from Melbourne.

But soccer's still in his blood and he started bubbling with renewed enthusiasm when Hellas asked him to come back.

It's his second comeback with Hellas. He quit three years ago and was out of the game for 12 months after Hellas failed to respond to his demands for a new contract.

Yet even after a one-year absence, Rogers had no trouble fitting in again when coach John Margaritis called him back.

The most spectacular comeback however, was Rogers' return to the national team last year.

Coach Rudi Gutendorf decided he needed a midfield destroyer and it was Rogers he chose, even though Rogers' last game for Australia had been nine years earlier — against Pele's team FC Santos in 1972, when he came on as a substitute for Adrian Alston.

Australia managed a 2-2 draw that day, with Jimmy Rooney and Ray Baartz scoring the goals.

Rogers had played for Australia once previously, in a 2-2 draw with Wolverhampton Wanderers the same year.

And so Rogers wore the green and gold again in 1981, for Australia's opening World Cup qualifying game against New Zealand in Auckland.

Australia drew that game 2-2, but lost the return 0-2 in Sydney, and Rogers was dropped in the purge that followed.

dedicated, tireless fighter who serves as an inspiration to his team mates.

Born in South Africa, he played under 14 soccer there as a goalkeeper.

His first club in Australia was Sunshine City, where he was promoted from the under 16s to the reserves and then the senior team which benefited greatly from his high work rate for two seasons, before he switched to Melbourne-Hungaria.

There he became the club's top scorer, in 1970, when he had Rale Basic as coach and Ray Pocock and Steve Belsham on the wings.

After two years with Melbourne, he headed for Sydney to join Auburn where he stayed for three years.

Then it was off to APIA, a champion team at the time, featuring Peter Ollerton, Jimmy Rooney and Terry Butler. It was APIA that he shifted back to midfield.

Now in his fifth season with Hellas, he is putting everything he has into his comeback.

"I'm not coming back to play for the reserves or to sit on the bench," he said, "and by putting in the effort, I'll get the results."

McGorian top gun against new-look Altona Gate

Altona Gate
 Vardar could have up to six new faces in its first 11 on Saturday when it hosts Frankston Pines at Paisley Reserve.

However, neither the experience of Cele Presliski nor the rugged tackling of Steve Dimovski look like suppressing Pines' star winger Mick McGorian.

Vlado Kotevski, Altona Gate's central defender, comes up against George Malcolm, one of the best shielders of the ball in Metro ranks. Malcolm is likely to run Kotevski all over the park so Altona Gate would be well advised to sign up sweeper Danny Acsesi from J.U.S.T. Acsesi could play a crucial role in Saturday's clash as his duty would be to give good cover to his fellow defenders assigned the task of quelling the rampaging Pines' strike force.

Altona City, the only club to be relegated during the major league reshuffle four weeks ago, confronts Italian-sponsored Fawkner at Kim Reserve on Saturday.

Altona recently signed Jim Leonard, a full back from Dundee in Scotland and he could find himself pitted against the elusive Mario Anselma, Fawkner's close season signing from Doncaster Rovers.

Hans van der Poel returns to the Altona goal while Nat Little, Steve Jones and Howard Mercer have again signed for this season.

However it's unlikely that midfielder George Watters will be seen in Altona colors this year and Billy Whyte still is overseas.

I lean slightly to Fawkner in this clash. With the Sabidussi brother — Bruno and Carlo — in midfield, the visitors should have their fair share of possession and may do just enough to shade an Altona side which will surprise a lot of teams in 1982.

Hellas-Mordialloc, St. Albans Dinamo, Heidelberg, Bundoora, Ringwood United Serbia — perhaps Second Division Metro should be called the Amalgamation League.

All these clubs will find the second string sides of Preston Makedonia, Heidelberg Alexander and Footscray J.U.S.T. a handful this year.

The Second Division looks very open indeed.

Croatian-sponsored St. Albans expects big things this season from star midfielder Branko Culina. As we went to press the club was negotiating with Melbourne Croatia for the release of midfielder Ivan Istuk.

Vinko Pavlovic, from Altona City, has joined so St. Albans should put together a squad good enough to vie for honors.

Hungarian-sponsored Melbourne is keen to regain its former status as one of the giants of Victorian soccer.

Only $4000 for McClunie-Webster

Hellas-Hakoah's striking double, Richie McClunie and Stan Webster, have been transfer listed at their own requests.

The pair has a keen understanding up front and the prices on their heads are negotiable.

McClunie is listed at $1,500 with Webster at $2,500.

Interested clubs should phone 531 7262 after hours.

Both players have extensive experience in the Ayrshire League in Scotland.

BENTLEY'S BACK

Gordon Bentley has returned to Melbourne, the club with which he started his Australian career.

Bentley crossed from Devon on a free transfer. Before that he played for Albion Rovers.

Danny McMinimee, the man who guided Doveton into State League, is coach of Melbourne. McMinimee will put out a fit, hard-running side which features one of the most underrated players in Metro ranks in the talented John Bird.

Hellas-Mordialloc has signed Billy Rae as player-coach. The experienced Rae has been with Hakoah, Albion Rovers, Melbourne and Box Hill.

The new signings for the former Provisional Third Division club don't stop there.

George Cross trio, Jim Papas, Tom Tsatsias and Lou Hernandez have been signed along with goalkeeper George Nicopoulos from Postel Institute and Chris Michaelopoulos from Brighton.

Cele Presliski, star of Altona Gate Vardar.

The nuggety Michaelopoulos was the leading scorer in Metro Fourth Division last year.

Hellas-Mordialloc has its sights set on signing a big name striker. The club currently is negotiating with George Cross for Jim Papas. Hellas-Hakoah strikers Richie McClunie and Stan Webster are others who could be on the Greek sponsored club's shopping list.

Mordialloc should start off the season on a winning note on Saturday by taking the points from visitor Waverley.

St. Albans Dinamo visits Ross Reserve, Springvale, on Saturday and also should get a good start to the league season.

Thomastown and Mornington look like the teams to beat in Third Division. Italian-sponsored Thomastown, current Provisional League champion, won last year's Italian Cup by beating Juventus in the final. Such a credential makes Thomastown appear a strong promotion candidate.

Former Altona City and Frankston City midfielder Davie Cooper is player-coach of Mornington and has signed big Bob Adams from Frankston City.

"The Seagulls" have taken a long time to gain the momentum to get out of Metro Fourth Division and should continue on their winning way when they host Yallourn on Saturday.

George Train's Sunbury United must come into calculations for promotion, as should Greek sponsored Port Melbourne which made a big impact in a recent Greek Cup competition.

North Geelong, Mooroolbark, South Oakleigh and Sandringham look like the strongest sides in Fourth Division.

No doubt Norrie Davey's Rosebud won't be far behind. The colorful Davey always produces, tough, competitive sides and already this season he's signed Jimmy Smart, the former Essendon Lions great.

Davey has had coaching stints at Dandenong City,

Sandringham and Nunawading.

He'll meet old friends on Saturday when he takes his side to Sillitoe Reserve in Hampton to challenge Steve Walker's Sandringham.

The locals feature no less than seven new faces and are keen to get off to a flying start to 1982.

Croatian-sponsored North Geelong and Ian Williamson's Mooroolbark clash down Corio way on Saturday. A draw looks like the best bet.

The Barkers completed successful sponsorship negotiations late last week with Data Key Australia Pty. Ltd. and with ex-Sunshine stalwart Mike Dixey and Croydon midfielder Johnny Howarth in their line-up they should do their sponsor proud this season.

I fancy Ballarat, Rosanna and Hawksburn to fight out the Provisional First Division title race.

In Second Division my money's on Cranbourne, with Yarraville, Malvern City not far behind.

Burnley has high hopes of success in Third Division but watch out for Clarinda and Hampton Wanderers.

Springvale United should win the Fourth Division championship. The only interest revolves around the runner-up spot and Turkish-sponsored Holland Park can prove that the climb from the Amateur to the Provisional Leagues is not insurmountable.

Carl Gilder — not so jubilant now.

Pay is for service!

By CRAIG MACKENZIE

The right of a player to appeal against the transfer fee placed upon his head by his club has had an inflationary effect upon Australian transfer fees.

The rationale behind the introduction of Appeals Boards was to give players the chance to gain a fair and reasonable fees.

Clubs haven't been slow in fitting their interests into the structure of the Appeals Board system.

Now clubs place even higher transfer fees upon players, expecting Appeals Boards to drop the transfer price by a few thousand dollars.

However, in the case of Melbourne Croatia striker Carl Gilder, the $15,000 placed upon his head was not knocked down by the Appeals Board.

The terms of reference for the VSF Appeals Board are curious. They are:

In determining the transfer fee the tribunal (Appeals Board) shall consider the following points: (1) Cost of player to club (2) Length of service to club, (3) Signing-on fee and match fee paid by club, (4) Player's age, (5) Player's standard at joining club and at time of transfer.

It comes this writer that the VSF Appeals Board, indeed any Appeals Board, can take into consideration the match fee paid by the club.

Surely that match fee is a payment for service, nothing more, nothing less. The club is the employer, if you like, and pays the player — its employee — a match fee which can be likened only to a weekly wage.

That match fee is a subject for private negotiation between player and club and it is ludicrous in the extreme to include match fees when considering a fair and reasonable price to be placed upon a player's head.

Croatia won't find a buyer for Carl Gilder at its $15,000 transfer price. Committee members I have spoken to acknowledge this. Gilder himself acknowledges this. So what is the point of the exercise?

It's 'bon voyage' to David Childs

One of the best — quite possibly the very best — of Australia's top-flight soccer administrators quit the game last Friday: David Childs, secretary of Sydney City is out of soccer. And a sad day for the game.

Childs — Welsh born, English educated, ex-RAF, ex-Wollongong and Northern NSW Federation secretary — resigned to take up an executive post in Queensland with a network of food stores.

To me, he always has epitomised the ideal club secretary: intelligent, efficient, enterprising, creative and highly imaginative. On top of that he has managed to remain affable, even at the end of a hard day — often ending at 8pm — pleasant, polite and for ever willing to get involved in one of those interminable "what's-wrong-with-the-game" type of discourses.

His critics at times claimed that David Childs had "failed" with Wollongong and with Northern NSW. Actually, it was the club and that Federation that failed HIM.

In Sydney City, sponsored by the Sydney Hakoah club, David found his métier; this non-Jewish Anglo-Saxon fitted perfectly into what must have been an alien setting for him.

Hakoah is a rich club, a luxurious club, a totally European club but may not be an easy club to work for.

Somebody — a club member — once cracked to me:

"In APIA, Nick Papalio is the president of 8,000 mem-

Andrew Dettre

logical infrastructure of our soccer, the slapdash routine management "techniques" — and myriad problems associated with the game — prove this.

David Childs was one of the exceptions. Whether he was arranging a gala evening at the club, negotiating with a sponsor, meeting with other club officers or briefing his superiors, he was rarely at his second best.

And now — he is out of soccer. As he says, long term career considerations forced him to quit the game he deeply loves and understands.

The very best leave the bers. Here in Hakoah, Frank Lowy is the president of 5,000 presidents." ★ ★ ★

As some readers might suspect, I am seldom in awe of our soccer administrators; the majority are honest but drab men dabbling into a great unknown, with predictably poor results.

That goes for Federations, too, not just the clubs. The II-game: the very worst stay on for ever. How unspeakably sad.

Also last week, Radio 2GB's sports editor threw a fat cat among the pigeons with his allegations that a "minor sport with minimal popular" had tried to bribe him. He was offered $100 cash a week for a few minutes of radio time on Saturday mornings.

The editor, Richard Fisk, wouldn't name the sport. Could it have been soccer? We all wonder.

Fisk also said that he knew "at least four" Sydney journalists taking bribes from various sports. Naturally, he wouldn't name the gallant four.

But we have been hearing such rumours for years. According to "reliable reports," some reporters receive an unjustified "Christmas present" from certain clubs; the sum of $2,000 has been mentioned.

One of them is allegedly collecting payola left, right and centre.

Then what about a commentator involved with the electronic media who is reportedly also "on the take?" Sydney club officials talk about this with amazing openness but none of them are prepared to be quoted.

It's a sad reflection of our times that journalists should accept two payments for the one job — one from their employers, one from the sport itself.

Still, undoubtedly, a few of them do. Those who offer these inducements are just as guilty as those who take it, let alone demand it.

But beyond the moral implications, one really wonders what miracles these bribed reports are supposed to perform? Are they worth being corrupted?

If any of them would have ever demonstrated an ability to pack the grounds, I'd say the temptation of the bribe was at least understandable.

However, week after dreary week, their writing or commentary has not even the merest minimal effect on attendance; if anything, it keeps fans disenchanted with the game.

The only sensible thing would be to pay them a small weekly retainer — and ask them not to write anything at all. Perhaps that would bring about some positive results.

Investigate payola claims, oops, what a blunder!

IN FOCUS

With Peter Scott

The proverbial bull dust really hit the sand in Sydney last week with sensational allegations of payola going the way of all — powerful sports commentators.

The rationale for these storeys seems to be that the many sports battling for survival and the elusive sponsorship dollar are seeking ways of ensuring guaranteed exposure on TV and Radio.

We in soccer are familiar with the very problems they are talking about even if many of our sports' wounds are self inflicted when it comes to media relations.

Witness the latest fracas between the Philips Soccer League and the various State Leagues.

There are numerous others even worse off than the round-ball code.

However, out of all the hullabaloo and protestations from outraged media personalities something good may emerge. Soccer and the many other sports and, dare we say, the largely dormant Confederation of Australian Sport which is expected to represent all of us, should not allow this affair to become a nine day wonder.

Let's take up the cudgels and demand a thorough investigation into why some sports feel it necessary to spend their meager resources on allegedly greasing the palms of commentators.

Why don't all Radio and TV stations as well as newspapers, do their job, which is to present the news and information in a manner and format at least roughly representative of the size of public participation and standard of competition in each of these sports, within the obvious limitations of time and space?

On what basis do sports get classified into "minor" and "major" categories?

What are the guidelines for deciding on the slot for each sport, this arbitrary type-casting which can well determine its future hopes for sponsorship and attracting crowds?

Now that the lid has been blown off we may well be entitled to ask why certain afternoon newspapers devote, on occasion, 85 percent or more of their sporting space to Rugby League and Racing.

In fact, maybe the time has arrived for the Australian sporting media to be put under the microscope, one which should focus on the professionalism, knowledge, competence and fair-mindedness of some of our fellow journalists, editors and producers.

Just to stay with the media theme a little while longer, it is a pity that a semblance of respect and co-operation cannot be maintained within the soccer press of this country.

Last week I felt the need to refer to another soccer publication which, judging by the latest issue seems to specialise in denigrating anything that looks the least bit like competition.

All I can say is that in business, everybody should get judged by the quality of the service or the product provided, not by an ability to score points off cheap shots aimed at competitors.

And, while we are discussing quality and accuracy, it is strange that a publication which never ceases to sound like the soccer version of Muhammad Ali would allow some rather embarrassing blunders to appear in its pages.

For instance, would somebody please tell them that George Christopoulos' appearance in Britain for Newcastle United does not depend on Greece eventually joining the European Common Market.

Viewing recent matches from England on television, I despair at the number of teams that still persist, with the goalkeeper in possession of the ball, in using the very often non-productive "big boot" towards the half-way line.

This normally results in a big battle and frequent loss of possession of the ball.

This tactic is applied so much by our own teams here in Australia. Some of the coaches responsible for those very often talk of playing skilful, creative and enterprising soccer and yet still persist with a tactic that gives the ball away with almost reckless abandon and obvious regularity.

On the other hand there often is a paranoid anxiety often seen in many spectators and team officials when their team is prepared to receive the ball from the goalkeeper in areas close to their own goal and play out from the back.

Victoria played this system of building up from the back in their recent fixtures versus New Zealand and Hungary.

Unfortunately the patience shown by the Victorian players in building up their attack did not carry through to the anxious Victorian supporters.

Surely, for a team to reach at least the halfway line with the ball in their composed possession, is a much better position than the ball in the air with the chance that your team may or may not win the first touch, and then have to battle for possessions after that.

Generally an organised defence can deal with the predictable "big boot" attack, with a good challenge in the air and cover behind the challenge.

That does not mean that the kick from the goalkeeper has no place in the game; performed at the right time it can be effective but I believe it is generally overworked. Evidence of it being used successfully.

Next week I will continue this subject and look at what we need to play out from the back and of course HOW WE PLAY OUT FROM THE BACK. I will include a diagram with a suggested method of performing the task.

During the Under 15 tour of New Zealand I shall endeavour to try and arrange a tour in 1983 for a Victorian Country U/15 side.

But coaching courses will be held at most country centres in the next few weeks.

Shepparton City is trying to arrange games for an U/18 squad when it comes to Melbourne to play its Provisional League games.

Any teams interested in playing it can contact me on 467 6315 for details.

Also, any clubs interested in playing the U/15 state squad on Wednesday nights during April can also contact me.

But beyond the moral implications, one really wonders what miracles these bribed reports are supposed to perform? Are they worth being corrupted?

If any of them would have ever demonstrated an ability to pack the grounds, I'd say the temptation of the bribe was at least understandable.

However, week after dreary week, their writing or commentary has not even the merest minimal effect on attendance; if anything, it keeps fans disenchanted with the game.

The only sensible thing would be to pay them a small weekly retainer — and ask them not to write anything at all. Perhaps that would bring about some positive results.

GOALS!

A unique A to Z collection

JIMMY GREAVES

Goals are what the game is all about, and they are also what this book is all about — great goals, and the men who scored them.

Along with my co-author Norman Giller and researcher Malcolm Rowley, I have been questioning all the great British goal-scorers to find out their most memorable goals and the greatest goals they have seen scored by anybody else. I would like to thank them all for their co-operation, and hope their inclusion in this Who's Who of goal-scorers will help cement their place in football folklore. They are the men who have brought magic into the life of millions with their golden goals.

I hope you find your favourite goal-scorer featured in the A to Z guide, or at least in the statistical section at the back which lists every leading Football League and Scottish League goal-scorer for the last fifty years.

What is the greatest goal you ever saw scored? Everybody has their own particular favourite. Perhaps you will find in the following pages that somebody inside the game shares your magical memory.

Hakoah for lead, Hellas to click

By CRAIG MACKENZIE

Sydney City Hakoah should be perched in its customary top of the table position after Sunday's clash with APIA Leichhardt at the Sydney Athletic Field.

The classy Sydney City is my tip for title honors in 1982. It's monotonous to tip Eddie Thomson's team for title honors - the team that's won three PSL titles in five years. Almost as repetitious as the fashion in which Sydney City continues to dominate Australian soccer at the highest level.

As in 1981, the John Kosmina-Kenny Boden partnership leads the Sydney City strike force and should prove too good for the APIA team on Sunday.

No doubt APIA's measured improvement in recent times continues. In Marshall Soper, APIA has one of the most exciting strikers in the present PSL.

However, the elusive Soper will find space up front at a premium against experienced Steve O'Connor, John Spanos and Co.

South Melbourne Hellas, the team which promised so much at the start of the season now finds itself five points adrift from top spot.

Hellas probably claims, rightfully, that it has had no luck in its past two trips to Sydney. Missed chances cost it dearly against Sydney City and a late Soper sealed its fate against APIA.

However Hellas can rekindle its flagging championship flame at Brisbane City's expense at Middle Park on Sunday.

Charlie Egan heads the scorers' list at Hellas this year with four PSL goals to his name. More importantly the quicksilver Egan promises even greater things to come once he finally finds his feet in PSL ranks.

An unusual Jim Shirra mistake cost Hellas dearly against APIA and the home team's support will be looking for a disciplined display against Nero Saitch's Brisbane City.

With Jimmy Dunn at sweeper and fullbacks Steve Perry and Billy Wilkinson flanking the former Eire international, City takes on a fairly resolute appearance in defence. Still, it's hard to see the visitors holding out on Sunday.

Preston Makedonia may have to be satisfied with sharing the points when it runs into George Murray's Canberra at Connor Reserve on Sunday.

Canberra kingpins, Ian Gibson and Ian Purdie, are the danger men here and now that Tony Brennan has found his scoring touch the home side's defence could be in for a torrid time.

Canberra coach Murray is well acquainted with the ability of Makedonia's dynamo Doug Brown. The pair knew each other at Aberdeen in Scotland, so Murray's knowledge of Brown's strengths could be put to good use when the Canberra supremo selects the man to quell the dashing Scot.

Heidelberg should find itself just one point away from top spot in the PSL after it clashes with Marconi at Marconi Stadium on Sunday.

Heidelberg stopper Don Macleod may be confronted by the tall, aggressive Bertie Mariani and the former Nottingham Forest defender won't be outdone by Mariani in the aggression stakes.

I'm a fan of Marconi's young winger Renato Licata but the youngster could find experience Arthur McMillan an uncompromising foe. Indeed, Licata may find himself having to follow McMillan up the field whenever the Heidelberg right back takes off on the overlap.

Heidelberg has been falling down in midfield recently while Marconi seems to have unearthed a player of the future in 17 year old Tom McCulloch, who probably will be given the responsibility of the central midfield role on Sunday.

Marconi's biggest problem will be trying to tag Jim Campbell who will run his marker ragged all around Marconi Stadium.

Marconi will stage a special trial match tonight (Wednesday) to blood young Yugoslav import Nikola Duvnjak. Coach Dom Kapetanovic hopes Duvnjak will be sufficiently acclimated to play against Heidelberg.

Duvnjak is the type of player I could use in defence as well as at the front," Kapetanovic said.

The Youth League match was rained off on Saturday, so he had no idea what to expect in the local experience his team's.

Kapetanovic also confirmed that Marconi's outstanding young midfielder, McCulloch, was set to return after a knee injury.

McCulloch's piercing through balls and maturity in reading the game have already made him a near certainty for the Australian Youth Team to contest the World Youth Championship elimination games in December.

In addition Mark Jankovic, whom Kapetanovic rates his best striker, should be fit again after a nose operation.

Two of the PSL's Greek-sponsored clubs, Sydney Olympic and West Adelaide Hellas, meet at Pratten Park on Sunday and Olympic should scrape home against the well-drilled West outfit.

Olympic's young Socceridou midfielders, Peter Rakopoulos and Peter Katholos will find themselves quickly closed down in the midfield third and their skills under pressure will be thoroughly tested.

However, under the constant barrage from the get-forward-at-all-costs Olympic, West may give way.

The greatest obstacle to Olympic picking up both points is West and Australian keeper Martyr Crook.

Wollongong should win its first points for the season against Footscray J.U.S.T. at the Wollongong Showgrounds on Sunday.

Southern visitors are prompted to view the Wollongong lads as title contenders at the start of the season, a prediction relegated to the realms of the ridiculous after just five PSL rounds.

However coach Ken Morton may have something to smile about after his side confronts dispirited and underranked J.U.S.T.

Newcastle KB coach Ken Kaiser is ready to welcome Craig Johnston, Australia's only million dollar footballer, who will be Newcastle's guest player for at least three matches in June.

"The team is on the improve, so it will be great to have a player of Craig's qualities," said Kaiser.

Johnston, a Newcastle product, transferred from Middleborough to European Cup holder Liverpool before the start to the current English season.

He has been in and out of the first team, but shows his precocious talents whenever he plays.

It's a pity, for KB's sake, that Johnston won't be here for Sunday's trip to Brisbane to see free scoring Lions at Richlands.

Lions' Scottish import Bill Williamson, surely is one of the most under-rated strikers in the PSL.

Williamson's tight ball control is excellent but more importantly he's quick to size up a chance to strike at goal and his finishing is first class.

Against a far from impressive KB back four Williamson should improve his scoring record in Australian soccer.

St. George has got off to a flying start to the season but it was brought back to earth last Sunday in its 2-1 loss to Olympic.

At Hindmarsh Stadium on Sunday Frank Arok's Saints could find Adelaide City a difficult opponent.

City will be boosted by sweeper Neil Banfield from England who will take part in a defence facing up to goal machine Dez Marton flanked by fellow Yugoslav Lazlo Lerinc.

Then there's St. George's young attacking midfielder Mark Barton to contend with.

Johnny Nyskohus played deep against Heidelberg last Saturday night but against Saints he's likely to be released into a more attacking role alongside David Mitchell and Brian Northcote. A draw is on the cards.

WOLLONGONG: Vardareff 6, Willis 6, Bertogna 8, Dunleavy 6, Ainsworth 6, Adam 7, Fontana 7, Fleming 6, Cotton 7, Gaffney 6, Morlando 5 (Ken 63rd).

A training accident has put Brisbane City's former Soccereroo fullback Steve Perry on crutches and out of the game for at least a month.

But stand-in fullback John McVeigh, a former midfielder-striker, has proved quite capable and was among the better players in City's far-from-convincing 3-1 win over Wollongong.

Perry chipped a bone in his ankle during a training game last Friday. City was playing a PSL v State League team trial when, two minutes from time, Perry went into a tackle with striker Barry Kelso, who was playing for the State Leaguers.

Perry's ankle swelled immediately and on Sunday he had to plaster up to the knee. Perry said he would see a specialist this week but at the very best he did not expect to be training for a month.

Normally that would have been disastrous news for City as Perry is one of its most reliable players, and although normally right back, fills in along the backline when the need arises. Only two weeks ago in Melbourne he played sweeper for the suspended Dunn in City's match against Macedonia.

But McVeigh has proved a surprise package at fullback and is giving City a new facet of attack with his curling crosses from the half-way line into the penalty box.

McVeigh, who last season was a fringe player mainly due to injury, was first pushed back into defence when Dunn was sent from the field in the Derby with Lions three weeks ago.

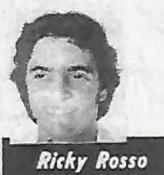

He stayed in the position and looks to be improving with each game. He did little wrong in last weekend's clash with Wollongong but, to be honest, it was a game in which no-one tarnished or enhanced their reputations.

The only exception was skilful winger Willie Conner, who these days seems a ball of energy.

Conner was involved in all three City goals. His corner gave City its first, he scored the second and it was his brilliant through ball which put City on the road to its third.

Conner, whose close control is a delight to watch, rounded with ease the Wolves defenders who repeatedly committed themselves too early and he was unlucky not to add more to the scoreheet.

City started the game with plenty of fire and big striker Kelso could have put the home side to a good early lead. But two good saves by Natch Vardareff kept Wollongong in the game and slowly the Wolves began mounting attacks on the City goal.

The prime instigator was centre forward Rey Cotton, who with Arno Bertogna and at times Lee Adam, looked the only Wollongong players who could hold their own in top company.

Cotton was willing to run back and forward across the width of the park looking for an opening and was finally rewarded in the 34th minute. He completely skinned Dunn and his good shot was parried by City keeper Kim Wishart across the goal for Glenn Fontana to site foot it.

Amazingly several City defenders stood and appealed for offside as they watched Fontana race in and finish the move.

With that goal under their belt the Wolves should have at least gone home with a point because City was far from its best. But with Bertogna alone carrying the defence it was not surprising to see City equalise three minutes from halftime through Barry Kelso after loose marking of the men who set it up. Frank Pimblett and Bevan Bohan.

To their credit the Wolves had two good chances, one a good volley by Fontana which hit the crossbar, but after that they offered little in the way of winning determination.

After Conner got his goal in the 59th minute City had a period of concentrated attack with close chances being missed by Peter Carey, Frank Liddell and Pimblett and a delicate chip from Conner well-saved by Vardareff.

The only hint of any attack from Wollongong came through a cracking 30-metre drive from Adam which hit the crossbar, but after that they offered little in the way of winning determination.

Olympic, not afraid to run forward, left itself open at the back on quite a few occasions and should have been punished but alas, Des Marton their star striker, had an off-day with his shooting boots, missing at least five good goal scoring chances.

To add to St George's frustrations, Peter Wilson in goal for Olympic was in superb form, making some great saves.

For those who might accuse me of bias I'd like to point out the facts of the game.

Marton had two early openings in the 10th and 16th minutes of the first half, with the second a mighty "sitter".

Wilson came out, Marton lobbed him but lobbed the cross bar in the process.

Martok had his first chance in the 25th minute but Fraser made a superb save, then only a minute later Griffith had his first opportunity to slot home a rebound, but again the ball was driven over the bar.

In the 27th minute Olympic had Saints beaten. Fraser made a despairing save at the feet of Koussas, the ball rebounded to Raskopoulos, but

It was City's first win of the season but one which it should not be too happy about. City was definitely not as good as the scoreline showed and much more effort and commitment is needed to recapture the sturdy form of last season.

As for Wollongong, coach Ken Morton considered his team was robbed and only needs a change of luck for the results to start coming.

On last Sunday's performance a heart transplant for at least six of his players would be in order. Bertogna must get sick of carrying them each week.

In a sparkling display of attacking football, Sydney Olympic downed hosts St George but had Saint's top marksmen been on target the result could have been quite different.

Olympic, not afraid to run forward, left itself open at the back on quite a few occasions and should have been punished but alas, Des Marton their star striker, had an off-day with his shooting boots, missing at least five good goal scoring chances.

To add to St George's frustrations, Peter Wilson in goal for Olympic was in superb form, making some great saves.

Wilson came out, Marton lobbed him but lobbed the cross bar in the process.

Martok had his first chance in the 25th minute but Fraser made a superb save, then only a minute later Wilson made another superb save, this time from Stone, then came the first of many missed by Marton.

Skene centred, Wilkinson headed down for Des Marton to face Wilson, but the ball was driven over the bar with the goal wide open.

The game became a little rough midway through the second half, with Barton chopping down Raskopoulos, then Rowden making a tackle on Mike Fraser, after the Saints' keeper collected the ball. Jim Ziras was so incensed with Barton's tackle he decided to say a few words to referee Small and was promptly booked, then Michael O'Shea got a yellow card for a foul on Peter Martok.

Lorinc, who replaced Griffith, combined with Wilkinson in the 82nd minute to provide Marton with yet another chance but the Saint (read sinner) lost the ball in the mud.

The thrills and spills of the his lob went past the post with Fraser well out of goal!

In the 30th minute it was Wilkinson's time to err. Some good work by Stone provided Wilkinson with an easy chance, but his shot was weak and was parried by Fraser.

With 11 minutes remaining in the half, Graham Jennings crossed from the left. Fraser held the ball under pressure and punted it to the feet of Mark Koussas who slot it in to make it 1-0.

Peter Wilson should have equalised in the 49th minute. A pin-point cross by Marton found Wilkinson alone and some seven metres from goal, but his header was poor and went past the post. Only a minute later Wilson made another superb save, this time from Stone, then came the first of many missed by Marton.

Skene centred, Wilkinson headed down for Des Marton to face Wilson, but the ball was driven over the bar with the goal wide open.

The game became a little rough midway through the second half, with Barton chopping down Raskopoulos, then Rowden making a tackle on Mike Fraser, after the Saints' keeper collected the ball. Jim Ziras was so incensed with Barton's tackle he decided to say a few words to referee Small and was promptly booked, then Michael O'Shea got a yellow card for a foul on Peter Martok.

Martok had a great game and so did Raskopoulos. These two youngsters haven't had their last say yet, of that I am sure.

Young Peter Wilson in goal was superb, while Graham Jennings and Mark Koussas are a delight to watch — Jennings with his superb skills and Koussas with his great penetration.

At the other end, Mike Fraser had a super day and could not be blamed for the goals. Ratcliffe was the pick of the defenders, Stone the best in midfield while Marton, missed chances aside, did well to get into scoring positions.

last eight minutes were a delight to watch despite the near misses.

83rd: another sitter for Marton after Wilkinson pushed the ball through, but yet again Marton hesitated, then tried to eat Ziras and the ball went past the post with Fraser well out of goal!

In the 30th minute it was Wilkinson's time to err. Some good work by Stone provided Wilkinson with an easy chance, but his shot was weak and was parried by Fraser.

Super Soper revels in the rain

APIA Leichhardt 3
S.M. Hellas 2

Scorers: Leichhardt: Soper 80th & 88th, Burrows 10th; South Melbourne: Egan 53rd, Buljovic 86th

Ground: Lambert Park

Crowd: 2794 (rain).

Referee: J. Reeves 7

Cautions: Blair, Campbell (SM), McAuland, Soper (APIA).

LEICHARDT: Woodhouse 8, Skellern 7, McAlusland 8, Pullen 7, Green 7, Bradley 6, McAlusland 7, Burton 7, Morsello 7, Soper 8, Burrows 8.

HELLAS: Laumets 7, Blair 7, Shirra 7, Jones 8, Xanthopoulos 7, Rogers 7, Stevenson 8, Davidson 7, Egan 8, Evans (Buljovic 11th 7), Campbell 8.

A top class drama unfolded at Lambert Park whilst the Sydney skies proved they could outdo anything that Melbourne could muster in the way of rain.

The principal point was played by APIA Leichhardt's ex-Newcastle striker Marshall Soper, who netted a goal that edged his team ahead and later scored the winner.

The great strength of this player is that he can produce a performance as dismal as was Sydney's weather, turn around and punish Hellas with two great goals, then get carried off the field by wildly enthusiastic fans.

Early he had sliced balls away and hit the side-netting when goals were "on" but of course, it still took a potential star to get into the positions to have the shot.

And, to top it off, he was the recipient of referee Reeves' caution in the 80th minute.

It would be difficult to forget those Soper goals.

The first goal

came from deep on the left in the 80th minute.

Then, with a 2-2 result imminent, Jim Schirra failed to give his back-pass to Peter Laumets due weight. Soper launched the chance to sprint in and went past Laumets to find the empty net.

No wonder disconsolate

Hellas coach John Margaritis

was left with a quizzical smile that point to the possibility of even better things to come.

only could mutter after the game, "there is no justice in football."

In a sense however, there was justice, because the team that produced the match-winner won the game.

But then Margaritis had a bitter pill to swallow when Alan Evans struggled off with an 11th minute ankle injury.

His replacement, Branko Buljevic, had an excellent match. Indeed he beat APIA right-back, Rod Skellern, to bring the score to 2-2 in the 86th minute from wee George Campbell's cross.

Paul Burrows netted his first PSL goal for APIA when he took advantage of a miss by Laumets at the far post after Tony Morsello had crossed and Soper also had missed with his shot.

The home side dominated the first half. South Melbourne Hellas kept lobbing balls ahead for its forwards, who either missed their connections or saw a tight APIA Leichhardt defence clear.

Eight minutes into the second half it was little Charlie Egan who latched onto a through ball and beat Ian Gray and Greg Woodward to the ball to record an equaliser at 1-1.

Then followed the most remarkable sequence of shots at either end that one would see in the whole season.

Egan, Campbell and Buljevic and Burrows (twice) and Soper were as close as a touch to scoring.

Soper headed in one for a 2-1 lead, slid another header past the post, and after Buljevic had scored he smacked the winner.

It was an epic in the rain and left Willie Wallace with one of those quizzical smiles that point to the possibility of even better things to come.

defence, a vast improvement on the last home match, no doubt a result of the greater tenacity shown by the midfield.

You might have noticed by now that I have not mentioned the opposition so far, as, sadly, this is the worst Marconi's officials.

Most of all the dream debut of 18 year old David Lowe (long overdue I might add) who played well and also helped himself to a couple of well taken goals.

Although it is too early to get carried away with one performance, the youngster showed that he is not afraid to have a shot he is good in a tight situation and these two assets alone will bring him goals.

The other ray of sunshine was the first appearance of midfielder Garrie Dooley in front of the Newcastle crowd. He showed that he will be quite an asset in the months to come. He is an honest player who can pace his game and even when he is taking a break is still involved. He is a perfect foil for Joe Senkalski and the other midfielder, Malcolm McClelland.

The other ray of sunshine was the first appearance of mid-fielder Garrie Dooley in front of the Newcastle crowd. He showed that he will be quite an asset in the months to come. He is an honest player who can pace his game and even when he is taking a break is still involved. He is a perfect foil for Joe Senkalski and the other midfielder, Malcolm McClelland.

However, the most pleasing part of the afternoon was the not to have a penalty when Lowe took on the Marconi defence, beating two men before being brought down by Calderon. However referee Power refused the request for a penalty.

That goal gave the locals confidence and for the rest of the game, the Marconi's goal, missing narrowly on several occasions.

On one of these occasions, McClelland made a great opening before passing to Senkalski but the mid-fielder's shot was well saved by Maher.

The second half started in similar vein and it was not until the 16th minute that Marconi's surprisingly threatened Phil Dando when a skilfully lifted free kick over the wall by Vieri was flicked past the post by Jankovic.

Newcastle continued to press and was a shade unlucky

eventually, Newcastle put the issue beyond doubt when Garrie Dooley found a big gap through the centre of the Marconi defence before drawing Calderon and setting up Lowe. With the aplomb of a veteran he calmly steered himself, waited for Maher to commit, then steered the ball into an empty net.

ROCCO ILLE BACK FOR FOOTSCRAY?

Foots JUST 0
Makedonia 1

Scorer: Ward 70th
Venue: Schinster Reserve
Crowd: 4910
Cautions: Boyle (Mak);
Referee: Chris Bambridge 9.

FOOTSCRAY J.U.S.T.:
Boland 8 — O'Reilly 7 — Stojcevski 8, Milne 8, Balic 7, Haz-
abert 8 — Ilioski 8, Jovanovic 7, — Cozzella 7, (Vasic 62nd), Samic 6, Ljubic 6.

PRESTON MAKEDONIA:
Wilson 7 — Petrovski 9,
Todorovski 7, Milmann 8, Fox 7 (Beach 62nd) — Flavelle 7,
Boyle 9, Whittle 9 — Ward 6,
Ollerton 6, Brown.

With Claude Lucchesi and Rob Cullen yet to return to the team, Preston Makedonia are looking for a place in the top four.
I can get another goalkeeper.

Richard Wilson has been in excellent form this season but he leaves in May with the New Zealand World Cup squad, and won't be back until early July.

Makedonia is now poised just outside the four, and should win again against Canberra City at Connor Reserve on Sunday, but without an adequate replacement for Wilson, it could slip back during the crucial part of the season.

J.U.S.T., on the other hand, needs a few forwards, otherwise its defence will continue to be overworked as it was last Sunday.

There's talk that Joe Palinkas wants to return from Brisbane City — and J.U.S.T. should waste no time in signing him. John Verweij is supposed to be returning from New Zealand, and he too should help the attack.

Everything considered,
J.U.S.T. achieved somewhat of a moral victory against Makedonia, although it lost the

Graham Fox

Rocco Ille

match and was beaten in general play.

Even so, J.U.S.T. had the handicap of having to play without injured Jim Kondras and Suleiman Curovic, forcing coach Milenko Rasmir to field a four-man defence, featuring replacements Vlaitko Bellic, playing his first game of the season, and Slobodan Stojcevski, playing his first full game for the senior team. Stojcevski was a resounding success — cool and calm under pressure, and tireless despite the heat.

The formation meant that J.U.S.T. had only a two man midfield — Zoran Ilioski and Slobodan Jovanovic — battling against overwhelming odds, as their Makedonia counterparts, Peter Boyle and Alan Whittle, supported by full back Ljubomir Petrovski, played "out of their skins."

Although Rasmir remains caretaker coach of J.U.S.T., there was talk at the ground that Rocco Ille may be called back. Ille apparently works with J.U.S.T. team manager Robert Crtkovic and a number of players, including Milan Kojic and Zdravko Ljubic.

An enthusiastic crowd of almost 5000 turned up at Schinster Reserve to watch this match in heat of over 30 degrees. Despite the hot conditions however, some of the players showed remarkable endurance.

Makedonia had most of the midfield play, due to Boyle and Whittle, but found it difficult to get past the packed J.U.S.T. defence.

In fact, Bruno Cozzella had two chances to score for J.U.S.T. defence.

In fact, Bruno Cozzella had run of play.

He kicked badly the first time, then he had a good shot brilliantly saved by Wilson.

Similarly, Gary Ward
should have put Makedonia ahead in the 51st minute, but he missed it at close range.
Graham Fox then took the left back from Ballymena in Ireland, played his first game for Makedonia and looks extremely capable. However he wilted in the heat and eventually was replaced by Steve Beech, who played with his customary dash.

Ward eventually notched the winning goal after Doug Brown had beaten men on a run down the left and squared the ball.

Boland saved another shot by Ward and then also plucked a Ward header out of the air before deflecting a good shot

Manou 6 (Villani 73rd), Marangoni 7 (sent off 83rd),
Metza 8, Nyskohus 7 —
Northcott 7, Mitchell 8.

Two new faces, fresh from the professional world of English League Football, soon to be seen in Heidelberg colors.

Coach Len McKendry
wouldn't name the pair, but 19, 20, is a fair way the other a midfielder, but he confirmed that he has been in touch with them late last week and that both youngsters were keen to join Heidelberg.

Adelaide City's import,
former English youth sweater
Neil Banfield, ex-Crystal Palace, is due to arrive today (Wednesday) then "the books will be closed," to use the words of City coach Bob D'ottavi.

The affable D'ottavi, once temper had cooled in the after-match atmosphere, went to talk to referee Jim Fearn and was told that City's Italian import Sergio Marangoni, given his marching orders late in the game, was sent off allegedly for spitting at Gary Cole.

Marangoni had different ideas. I followed the dis-

Sergio Marangoni

midfielder in Australia at present.

Campbell was here, there and everywhere against Adelaide City.

The timing of his runs off the ball were precise, his ability to find space in the attacking third uncanny, and his goal touch is a big plus for the Bergers this year.

Heidelberg City played with four in midfield, trying to blank Heidelberg in this area. The tactic proved fairly successful, more so from Heidelberg giving the ball away far too easily.

"Our midfield was a problem, he must be said that he kept the scoreline tight when he was there," said Campbell.

"Our two main errors
though were the lack of accuracy in our passing and our inability to take a far higher percentage of chances.

"The depth in the squad must be improved. We were interested in Gary Byrne, Eddie Krcevle and George Christopoulos but clubs nowadays talk in telephone numbers as far as transfer prices are concerned."

That's no denigration of the talent of Dods, just an accolade for the best attacking

Adelaide City, with the addition of Banfield, will keep its present squad intact. Coach D'ottavi ruled out the possibility of a big name guest player coming to the club this year.

"We fell down in midfield against Heidelberg," said
D'ottavi.

"With Banfield here and once Bugsy Nyskohus gets over his injury I'll probably push Dods into midfield."

"Believe it or not I have a team to get into the top four of the Philips League. I think the results will start to come soon.
We played far better against Heidelberg than we did against Newcastle the previous week."

"The second half of the season should be very good for us."

"Heidelberg is a very good team. They play good soccer.
You know what they are going to do but it doesn't matter that much because they do it so effectively."

"Don't worry about Adelaide City. We will come good."

Brisbane lift themselves off the ground after a Billy Williamson free-kick had smashed against Canberra's

After all the ups and downs, Barton hits form and Marton benefits

St George's exciting young striker Mark Barton was on the brink of swapping a soccer ball for a surfboard until Frank Arok came along and gave Barton a chance to establish himself in the first team.

Now the Barton-Des Marton combination grows in stature as every PSL game passes. It wasn't always so.

Displeasure over "big name" South American imports being given a chance ahead of him and a verbal clash with former coach Raul Blanco almost convinced Barton that Bondi beach was better than St. George Stadium.

But the St George club has been a home away from home for the boy who signed with the Saints when he was 14.

That was after a seven-year stint with local club Lakemba which started in the under 7's. An old bloke called "Pop" Gould set the groundwork for the development of Barton as a PSL player.

"There weren't many people around at the time who taught the basic skills of the game. "Pop" taught me the basics and even now he comes along to some of the St George games to see how I'm getting on."

Lakemba played in the Canterbury District Leagues and Barton represented Canterbury District in the State championships. He wasn't keen on what he describes as "silly political problems to do with Lakemba".

That's a reference to representing Canterbury District in the State championships and having to stay at Orange, the championship venue, a week longer than expected.

"When we returned to Lakemba we were accused of trouncing around the state because having to stay away an extra week meant that we missed out on an important league game.

"I wanted to get away. In those days the parents were always pushing their boys too much. In fact the parents ran the show at Lakemba."

"St George was a revelation."

"There were so many professional people there and the facilities were marvellous. Geoff Bird was my coach when I joined the St. George Juniors. He had a lot of faith in me and he kept me going until I was 16 and moved on into our Third Grade side. It took me about two years to establish myself in Third Grade."

"I had my first PSL game in 1977 again Western Suburbs. Since then I've had a smattering of games, a few more each year, but this really is the first year that I've established myself in the seniors."

The teenage Barton was surrounded by some of the most famous names in St George's history. The Schaefers and Warrens were there but the torch which glowed throughout the time when St George was the best team in Australia, had started to dim.

"The club didn't seem to be fully behind the team in the latter half of the 70's. Too many people were living on memories and the committee seemed to concentrate upon the building of its new stadium. The depth of the senior squad needed to be rebuilt but it wasn't," he says.

"Joe Vlasits, Ilija Takac, Joe Gelei and Raul Blanco were the first team coaches before Frank Arok took over."

"Vlasits had picked me in a junior State team earlier in my career. At the time he told me that I was playing schoolboy football. He must have thought I'd be improved a bit when he gave me a run in St. George's first team. He got good results with St. George and everyone respected him."

"I didn't have much to do with Takac. After the early games I couldn't get into the firsts. There were a couple of South Americans here, Carlos Mendez and Roberto Echeverria, and I felt uneasy about playing with them. To be honest, we younger guys didn't think that they put much effort into their game. They just wouldn't run for you."

"I became really downhearted. I was in the Second Grade team at the time and if it hadn't been for Tibor Zuckerman, our coach, I would have given the game away."

He encouraged me to stay. He said that I just have to do everything better to get into the first team. I'd even lost interest in training but Zuckerman kept at me, telling me that I have to keep going, that my chance would come again to prove myself."

The following season, 1980, was a body blow to the once mighty St. George. The club was relegated from the PSL into the NSW State League, the scene of St. George's greatest triumphs.

However, optimism ran high at the start of the 1980 season.

"Gelei was a Hungarian and the club had high hopes for him. But we still were relying too heavily on players who had been doing the job for too long. There was a feeling among the players that they were on their own, especially when results were bad.

Everyone tried to do the right thing by Gelei. We knew that he had a good understanding of football but he had a few language problems. Frankly, he found it hard to get his point across.

"Half-way through the season Blanco took over. I'll never forget the first night he held training."

"We had heard that he had set ideas about soccer and we knew that he had been very successful with Melita Eagles in the State League."

"He gave us a verbal hiding that first night. He told us that we were unfit and that he would get a shot-gun out and get rid of a lot of the players. That frightened some guys into performing."

"I was one of the first to drop out of the seniors when Blanco came. He said that we needed experience and he told me

Mark Barton

Joe Gelei

Tibor Zuckerman

Des Marton

Raul Blanco

that I was out of the first team squad.

"We had a few words with each other and he put me in the reserves for the rest of the season."

"When things went really bad Arok came."

"I have to say that Frank Arok probably is the best coach that I've played under. He knows what he wants and how to get it. He demands things from players, not asks. The big thing about Arok is that you know exactly where you stand with him."

"As soon as the game finishes he's the nicest person you could meet but he can be like a demon during the game. Just the other night at training he said he was a madman when we were playing. At the game's end though, he's a gentleman."

When at St George was relegated from the PSL most pundits predicted many years of ignominy ahead of the once famous Hungarian-sponsored club. They hadn't reckoned on the magic touch of Arok and the drive and enthusiasm of the committee.

"I think that being relegated was the best thing that could have happened to St. George."

Playing in the NSW State League gave me a chance to build up my confidence and we developed a togetherness in the first team squad which still is with us. We got to know and appreciate Frank Arok last year and he hasn't really changed even though we now play in a much higher standard."

The quickness of opposing defences was what took me by surprise when we started playing this year in the PSL.

"For the first 10 minutes of our first game against Canberra I stood waiting for the ball to come to me but it was long gone by the time I stuck out my foot to control it. I thought, 'My God, what's happening here? But you soon adjust'."

Barton has done much more than merely adjust to PSL soccer. He's been something of a minor revelation to date, alongside goal machine Des Marton.

"As far as English goes Des and I have very little understanding. Don't get me wrong, though. If I don't deliver the ball to Des where he wants it, he somehow finds the words to tell me what he thinks."

"A player of his class gives me a lot of confidence. His composure in front of goal is what impresses me most about him. I hope to learn to be similarly composed."

"We are aiming to consolidate St. George as a PSL club. Secretly though I reckon the committee harbors top four ambitions."

"I'll be happy as long as we keep winning."

"There's no club in Australia to compare with St. George. I think that once I'm finished with St. George then I'll be finished with soccer."

"It's long been an ambition of mine to be club captain at St. George. Let's hope that I fulfill that ambition in years to come."

St. George may not win the 1982 PSL championship. It seems a trifle unrealistic to expect St. George's resurgence to reach its zenith in so short a time. Barton sees South Melbourne, Hellas, Sydney City and Heidelberg as the teams to beat this year.

"I fancy South Melbourne, a very strong and capable side, to do the job and win the title."

"APIA Leichhardt's riding high at the moment but I think they'll run out of steam quite quickly. Then they'll start to struggle."

Meanwhile it's opposition defences that are struggling when confronted by the Barton-Marton duo.

Mighty Melita, Yugal surprises

NSW State League with ALEX VESIC

Melita Eagles took the top spot in the NSW State League following their 5-1 win over JM United at Melita Stadium. It was the most impressive display by any side in the first round, and one which should certainly sound a word of warning to other contenders for the NSW title.

Blacktown Demons suffered a setback in the opening minutes of the game at the Gabble, but came back to win comfortably, while Croatia survived some anxious first half moments before going past Avala with two second half goals at King Tomislav stadium.

Sutherland took two points at Francis Park with a 2-0 scoreline. It was a happy return for Peter Beggs to Sutherland who scored the first goal and was the tormentor of the Auburn defence throughout the game.

Manly defeated Polonia 3-0, but had it taken its chances the result might have been embarrassing one for the visitors to the Gabble. At the other end of town, Canterbury had to fight hard to keep one point against a spirited Rockdale Linden, while Yugal surprised all and sundry by reversing a recent 2-0 defeat at the hands of Riverwood to run out 3-2 winners.

It was the only surprise result of the round and one which should serve notice to other State League clubs — Yugal has no intention of walking back to First Division as quickly as they came in.

St George started the trend of playing in this year's Ampol Cup with their second grade team, then others followed. The last match in group A between Riverwood and Canterbury, the match which had no bearing on the final placings at the top of this group, was again without many first graders.

In fact, Dobson apart, the whole of the Riverwood first grade team, including illustrious coach, Ati Abonyi was missing.

A number of Canterbury players were missing.

All those interviewed about the reasons for the non-appearance of the first graders are united in their reply: "We

Tony Bush made certain of the two points, scoring in the dying seconds of the first half. At the other end of the field, Mal Hayes had another great game to keep the Auburn forwards out.

He stuck his big foot in the path of a shot by Turner, then made another great save from Dale. It was no surprise to hear that "this guy is too big to be allowed in goal" from an irate Auburn fan, as the crowd was leaving the park.

Hayes spent Sutherland in best to Peter Beggs and Tony Bush, while Quigley and Grieves had good games for Auburn.

Yugal continued its sparkling pre-season form to easily defeat Polonia at Crome Park by 3-0.

Polonia managed to keep an "even keel" for the first 20 minutes, but from then on Manly showed far more creativity and far more shooting power.

Stuart broke through on the right flank to score in the 3rd minute, then repeated the dose in the 37th after Kalinowski managed to block a shot by Terry Smith.

Soon after the start of the second half Manly went further ahead through Regan. Doyle jumped high to head down for Regan and the shot followed to have Kalinowski beaten yet again.

Polonia came back after that goal and continued but the last 20 minutes were dominated again by Manly. Only Galas and Kalinowski stood between Manly and a crushing win, with Kalinowski certainly the man responsible for making the scoreline respectable.

Manly returned to the State League of NSW with a first-up win over Riverwood at Concord largely due to some good shooting by Stuart.

Yugal put Regan ahead after 14 minutes of the second half following another frenzied goal from the corner kick, but Soddart levelled from a well-taken penalty.

However Yugal was not to be denied and came back to snatch a winner through an enterprising Patrick Rodas in the 70th minute.

Santrac hat-trick, Italians to clash

WEST ADELAIDE 4 (Santrac 5th, 25th, 76th, Menecas 55th) PARA HILLS 1 (Mitchell 32nd)

CROATIA 4 (Peleks 15th, Herd 27th, Lescan 32nd, Blate 75th) NOARLUNGA 1 (Sullivan 52nd)

Arian Santrac completed his hat-trick with four minutes left (the 50th goal of the competition) against Para Hills to send West Adelaide into tonight's (Wednesday's) Ampol Cup semi-final against Croatia at Adelaide's Hindmarsh Stadium.

West overpowered Para Hills 4-1 which was just enough to edge out Beograd on goal difference in second place in group B.

Meanwhile, Adelaide City Juventus takes on Azzurri in the all-Italian semi-final in the late game at Hindmarsh tonight.

West Adelaide needed a minimum three-goal winning margin against Para Hills to have any hope of qualifying for tonight's semi-finals.

Aian Vest's men are improving in every match and with last Sunday's Sydney City match under their belts, Croatia's involvement in the Cup should come to an abrupt halt.

In the late game, Adelaide City will find Azzurri a determined opponent.

By MENO TOUTSIDIS

If City can not shake off its recent poor form, Azzurri could upset it.

However, David Mitchell's skill, pace and aggression should frighten the life out of Azzurri's defence which will know has been in a match.

Masny stays home

Czechoslovakia included a number of newcomers in its touring party of 18 players which played Argentina and Brazil in South America. Experienced players such as Vojacek, Blatny and Masny have been left at home. The Czechs, who are in the same World Cup group as England, France and Kuwait, played Brazil in Sao Paulo, and Argentina in Buenos Aires last week.

Bordeaux is the new leader in France by one point from St Etienne. Bordeaux, boasting such internationals as Tiganza, Tresor, Giresse and Lacombe, beat Tours 2-1. Tiganza scored with a long range effort from 30 metres while Kourichi, the Algerian international, scored the winner with a header. St Etienne led Lille 1-0 after Platini scored early in the second half but Musin got a late equaliser for Lille. Monaco is level with St Etienne on points after beating Valenciennes 3-1.

Juventus leads the Italian league on goals difference from Fiorentina. Juventus beat Cagliari 1-0 with a goal by Tardelli. Dino Zoff celebrated his 40th birthday by keeping a clean sheet in this match. Fiorentina defeated Avelino 2-1, one of its scorers being the Argentine international, Daniel Bertoni.

PSV Eindhoven still leads Ajax in Holland. Alkmaar got a real shock, however, when it was beaten 4-1 by Go Ahead Eagles of Deventer.

In the Jawaharlal Nehru Gold Cup series being played in Calcutta, in India, the home team beat Yugoslavia 2-1 while Uruguay beat Italy 3-2 to reach the final.

Bayern Munich leads in West Germany from Borussia Moenchengladbach. Hamburg and Cologne are behind in third and fourth places respectively. Bayern defeated Eintracht Braunschweig 3-1, Borussia Moenchengladbach surprisingly lost at home 1-0 to Borussia Dordmund, and Hamburg beat Eintracht Frankfurt 2-0 two weeks ago.

Poland will play Belgium in a World Cup warm-up match on April 25th.

ENGLISH CRISIS GETS WORSE, CRUYFF BACK FOR HOLLAND?

Hard on the heels of the Bristol City crisis six weeks ago when eight first team players accepted redundancy rather than see the club with over $2.5 million in debts fold immediately, the extravagant spending and astronomical debts have caught up with another two English League sides that have been offered for sale — lock, stock and barrel.

Hull City, losing around $17,000 a week and with staggering debts of $1.3 mil. is in the hands of the receiver and up for sale while the latest SOS comes from Halifax. Transfer lists all 17 professionals and also offered the club for sale. Another crying wolf? Plymouth Argyle, losing $3000 a week and with the prospect that $450,000 injected into the club by a set of new directors in October will have disappeared by June.

Hull City's millionaire chairman Chris Needler who put up $650,000 of his own money in an interest-free loan, has been told by his financial advisers to stop his money flow. The other $650,000 debut is owed to the banks.

Hull's manager is Mike Smith, former national manager of Wales, who is reported to get $60,000 a year and his chief coach, Cyril Lea getting $40,000 a year and every youth coach, Bobby Brown is reportedly to be paid $30,000 a year.

The Yorkshire club, which tumbled from the Second Division to the Fourth Division in three years, once pulled in 55,000 fans at its Boothferry Park, Glasgow on March 24. Cruyff, back with Ajax, last played for Holland in the World Cup in Argentina in 1978. He was on the losing side against Scotland then.

Halifax Town which has had to be re-elected to both the Third and Fourth divisions many times, has been kept going with $130,000 in hand-outs from its wealthy chairman Sam Rorke who now says he will continue to pay its $7500 a week wage bill and exes for other clubs this year.

Another Yorkshire side, it too is on the market for any bidder and has been getting gates of little over 1500 but in 1983 pulled in 36,885 when it played Spurs at Shay Ground in the F.A. Cup.

Plymouth Argyle which has been in the Second Division and is managed by former Newcastle and Scotland defender Bobby Moncur, is only managing to attract home gates of less than 5000 yet in 1986 it had 43,596 for its Second Division match with Aston Villa. Argyle is to try to cut its professional staff from 23 to 16 immediately.

Many other clubs are in similar plight to Bristol City, Hull City, Halifax Town and Plymouth Argyle and as I predicted some time ago, some of the clubs may not figure on the league fixture lists for season 1982/83.

Northern Ireland players have ultimately settled their money claim after qualifying for the World Cup. The Northern Ireland F.A. has given them $150,000 to split among themselves.

For the Football League, the PFA Promoters and the PFA have made it abundantly clear they won't be bailing out anyone suffering from self-inflicted injuries.

For 115 years Queens Park, the Scottish First Division side, has proudly retained its amateur status. But it does have a new on its books at present in the person of 19-year-old central defender John McGregor. John is a sales rep for the Queens Park lottery.

Arsenal has promised a trial to 16-year-old Mark Boyd who lives in Australia and went down under with his parents when he was eight years old.

The Football League in England is planning to splash out $9 million in a massive publicity campaign aimed at seeing a major increase in attendance next season.

John Cruyff may be asked to make a comeback for Holland in its friendly against Scotland at Hampden Park, Glasgow on March 24. Cruyff, back with Ajax, last played for Holland in the World Cup in Argentina in 1978. He was on the losing side against Scotland then.

Alain Ball, 36, the former England striker still playing great stuff for Southampton, has passed his 700th league game in English soccer and becomes only the 10th member of the 700 club.

Jim McLean, Scotland's highest-paid manager, has signed a contract with his club, Dundee United, which will tie him down for the rest of his career. McLean, a former top player who has made Dundee United a respected name in European soccer, becomes managing-director of the club.

ager of Doncaster Rovers, recently fielded himself as sub in first game with Newport. Probably the wealthiest sub in soccer following his $200,000 libel case win.

Northern Ireland players have ultimately settled their money claim after qualifying for the World Cup. The Northern Ireland F.A. has given them $150,000 to split among themselves.

Scottish football suffered a great loss with the death of Hugh Nelson who was boss of the Scotland party which played three international matches in Australia in 1967. Hugh, a former chairman of Arbroath Football Club, was past president of the Scottish Football Association, past president of the Scottish Football League, former member of the executive committee of UEFA and a member of the Scottish Sports Council.

He was 77, leaves a widow and two daughters and son fan who played for Queen's Park and Arbroath. A personal friend of mine for 35 years, he was aware the CBE in 1974.

Jim Smith, recently sacked as manager of Birmingham, is the new boss of Oxford United.

Colo Colo won the 1981 Chilean first division title for the 13th time, but they did it by just two bonus points obtained by winning a pre-season tournament.

Vicente Cordero, as a matter of fact, won a match more to finish with a 20-6 record against the champions' 19-8-3, both teams thus totalling 46 points in actual play.

Colo Colo however finished as leading scorers with 63 goals — an average of over two per game in 30 — and the best defence with 22 goals against. Cordero were the defending champions who had been runners-up the year before (1979) when Colo Colo won the title . . . which shows the recent dominance of Chilean soccer by these two clubs.

Colo Colo virtually lost their chance two weeks from the end when they went down 2-0 to Colo Colo in front of 71,000 fans at Santiago's national stadium with Carlos Cazaly — who finished up as league top scorer with 20 goals — netting one in each half, the first from a penalty. Although their chances were then revived when Colo Colo lost to relegation threatened O'Higgins, the champions clinched it with a 3-1 win on the last day over Palestino, another team in trouble.

Teams which finished from second to fifth will, as usual, play off for entry into the Libertadores Cup with Colo Colo. The four candidates were Cordero, who had the play-offs — Universidad de Chile, Union Espanola and Naval. The bottom four are relegated automatically — Nubense, San Luis, Evert and Concepcion (all from the provinces) — while the two above them (Iquique and Palestino) will play off with two teams from the second division (3rd and 4th) with two staying up.

The Chilean FA had also previously decided that the Santiago team with fewest points over the last three seasons — in this case Palestino — must be relegated or join up with another club to stay up. This is an economic measure designed to reduce the number of clubs in the capital and improve gates for the remaining ones.

Rudi Gutendorf's 'expert' views on South America

$20 for sex made Carlos play better!

Diego Maradona and Karl-Heinz Rummenigge will be the stars of the World Cup in Spain ... West Germany isn't as strong as everyone seems to think ... and Carlos Cazzely can do big things for Chile providing he gets his usual ration of sex.

These are some of the thoughts of Rudi Gutendorf, former coach of the Socceroos and now coach of Cameroon, one of the 24 finalists.

Gutendorf, writing in the West German magazine "Sport", set himself up as an expert on South American soccer, by virtue of his coaching experience in Chile and Peru.

He was national coach for Chile for two and a half years before the 1974 World Cup finals and explains that his overthrow coincided with that of his friend, Chilean president Salvador Allende.

"I am not convinced," he says, "that Jupp Derwall's German team is capable of an easy victory over Chile."

"I remember Cazzely particularly. He was a very wild boy. Because of the threat of La Dolce Vita, I put all the boys into a training camp before one of the international matches.

"Cazzely however, would not let up. 'Coach, I need $20 for a girl,' he told me. Did I tell him off? But then the team captain came to see me and succeeded in changing my mind.

"So Cazzely got his $20 for a girl.

"The next day we won 2-1 — both goals were scored by Cazzely.

"Real men! So too are the Brazilians and Argentinians.

"The Argentinians are also tough guys — hard as leather.

"During one game, in which we led 3-0, they handed out uppercuts galore. Could they brawl? 'Los Machos,' that's what they call them over there. It means 'men with balls.'

"And they can sure play. Menotti makes sure of that. He's a Superman, and he again has a fantastic squad. His guarantee for success are the experienced older players. Then there's Maradona, absolute world class. He and Rummenigge of Germany will be the top stars of the World Cup".

Then Gutendorf turns his attention to the Brazilians.

"Their strength is their playing system. Instead of using a sweeper, they dare to rely simply on a four-man wall which manages to confront each opposing forward with two men. And it also means that they have one extra man in attack. Remember how helpless Germany looked against Brazil in the mini-World Cup? A top team never should capitulate so easily.

"But then the German national team is like Hamburger SV — super in attack, but look out if the play goes the other way!

"Defending correctly is an art. The best defensive system is the one I used as MSV. No Derwall, no Schoen, no Herberger had thought about such a system. That's why they dubbed me 'Riegel-Rudi'." (The word "Riegel" refers to defence).

Gutendorf concludes by saying he does not think very highly of the West German team. "We are not stronger than, for example, Argentina," he says.

"Argentina, together with Brazil, are my favorites for the World Cup.

"Of course, I expect

Jupp Derwall

that Germany will reach the last four — for if they don't, it will be scandalous. If you have the strongest league in the world, you simply have to reach the top four. The failure of 1978 must not repeat itself.

"But remember my warning about Chile. They are certainly stronger than Austria and they will reach the last eight. Even more is expected of Peru by their fans. If they don't reach the semi-finals, they will be abused on the streets back home.

"And for Argentina and Brazil, the finals would be their minimum achievement."

Starving urchin now Zico the invincible

By PAUL MOON

A year ago it appeared that the 1982 World Cup inevitably would provide an appropriate stage for Diego Maradona to confirm his status as the world's number one player.

During the past 12 months however Brazil's Zico has emerged, at 29 years of age and after countless setbacks, as a legitimate contender for the title following a series of exhilarating performances for both his country and Flamengo, the current Inter-Continental club champion.

Born Artur Antunes Coimbra in the Quintini Bocaiuva district of Rio, he was reared in a football obsessed environment, his father having been a goalkeeper with the popular Vasco da Gama club, while two of his four brothers also played soccer at professional level.

It was his elder sister however who first gave him the nickname Zico, which has survived from the evenings when she searched local backstreets and beaches for the urchin, one among thousands pursuing rag balls in dozens of disorderly games, which are a permanent feature of the Brazilian urban landscape.

In common with virtually all South America's footballing greats, Zico grew up in poverty and presented a heart-rending picture when, at 15 years of age, he attended a trial with Flamengo.

It was obvious that the youngster was blessed with remarkable skills, yet was far too feeble to withstand the challenges of professional football.

Flamengo decided to take a gamble. Zico was put on a body-building programme. Vitamin pills were pumped into him, weight training became a daily ritual and, for the first time, meat was introduced to his diet.

The treatment worked wonders and, although not a Charles Atlas look-alike, he was able to withstand the attentions of the most rugged defenders in Rio's youth leagues.

And attention he was soon getting in abundance, for his first 20 games produced 27 goals.

At 18 years of age, Zico was elevated to the first team, only to flop badly, simply not yet being ready for the higher grade.

Another season in the youth side, which brought 20 goals from 22 games, not only restored confidence, but gave his game an extra dimension in experience and sophistication.

Brazil selected him for its Olympic combination and a scintillating performance against Colombia convinced everybody watching that a new star was in the making.

Restored to Flamengo's first team, Zico quickly adapted to the senior level this second time around and spearheaded its Rio League success of 1974, a feat it was to repeat during the two following seasons.

The Brazilian press proclaimed him as the "New Pele". Outliers were sceptical, as the Rio newspapers discover new Peles with the regularity that Sydney cricket journalists found new Bradmans in the late 1950s.

Despite much lobbying on his behalf, the Flamengo star was omitted from Brazil's 1974 World Cup squad and did not don the yellow and blue until two years later and celebrated by hitting the winner against Uruguay.

The following season he claimed four against Bolivia and on the domestic scene became the first player to score six at the Maracana Stadium.

By this time Brazilian soccer fans were convinced that Zico would power their team to a successful assault on the World Cup in Argentina. Unfortunately the burden placed upon him was too heavy.

The opening match against Sweden ended in turmoil when it was realised that Welsh referee Clive Thomas had disallowed Zico's headed "winner", as the ball crossed the goal line a fraction of a second after the final whistle had sounded.

Zico

Diego Maradona

That incident epitomised a wretched career. Totally unable to produce his best form, he wandered ineffectively in and out of games until a rugged Polish tackle ended his involvement in that Mundial.

At least the injury gave him a three-month respite from the perpetual whirlpool of Brazilian soccer. Out of the limelight he was able to recharge both his physical and mental batteries.

Confidence and appetite for the game now restored, and the World Cup nightmare behind him, Zico was back to his prolific scoring best.

It wasn't until last year though that Europe saw the real Zico. It was he who masterminded Brazil's clean sweep of England, West Germany and France, scoring his 500th senior goal in Paris.

The Brazilians were immediately installed as World Cup favorites.

Flamengo was prospering too. The Rio League, Brazilian Championship, Libertadores cup and Inter-Continental Cup are all installed in the clubs trophy room.

Against Chile's Cobrelia in the Libertadores Cup final, Zico scored all his team's four goals, while it was he who created the three which sank Liverpool in Tokyo.

Inevitably Zico has been a prime target for Europe's wealthier clubs. In recent years Real Madrid, Internazionale Milan, Barcelona and Juventus all have been linked with him, but it was AC Milan which came nearest to acquiring his signature.

Zico, who has an Italian grandfather, appeared set to join newly-promoted Milan in April of last year, only for Flamengo president Antônio Abrahão to produce a financial packet which even the Milanese could not match.

Zico's contract is a complex document, his earnings are made up of a base figure plus the proceeds of an annual benefit match, money from commercial endorsements, a percentage of gate takings and bonuses.

A conservative estimate of his salary is $350,000 a year.

Little wonder then, that he stayed in Rio and Milan had to be content with the consolation prize (or booby prize?) of Joe Jordan as its foreign acquisition.

Displaying the rare combination of supreme ball control and a livewire footballing brain, Zico can dictate a match, irrespective of the company he is in.

With Roma's Roberto Falcao now likely to be available for Brazil as a conventional midfielder, Zico probably will adopt an attacking role in Spain.

An exponent of the swerving free kick from outside the box, he is a clinical finisher inside it.

Only once have Zico and Maradona come face to face. Flamengo — and Zico, won that encounter 2-0, although the Argentinian was still nursing an injury.

When they meet again the destination of the World Cup may well be determined by the outcome.

BACK ROW: Glyn Campbell (from Mt. Wellington NZ, 1981), Larry Gaffney (Brisbane City, 1982), Nettie Vanderveldt (Wollongong United, 1981), Geoff Answorth (Liverpool, England, 1981), Arno Bertogna (Newcastle KB, 1981), Lee Adam (Kiev, WA, 1981), Roy Cotton (St. George, 1982).
FRONT ROW: Glen Fontana (Wollongong United, 1981), John Fleming (Port Vale, England, 1981), Phil O'Connor (APIA, 1982), Chris Dunleavy (Halifax, England, 1981), Peter Willis (Rapid Wheat Point, 1981).
 Wollongong City, backed by Westfield and the Wollongong Leagues Club, was formed last year to give the Illawarra region in NSW representation in the PSL. The groundwork in the club's administration was done by Laurie Kelly (speaker of the NSW Legislative Assembly), Greg Best, Alan Hoy, John Elliot, Neville Arrowsmith and Richard Drake. Englishman Ken Morton was hired as player-coach during this first season and almost unbelievably the team, built on a budget of only $70,000, was sitting on top of the PSL ladder in the early rounds. To help consolidate "The Wolves" in the PSL, Roy Cotton crossed from St. George this year for $8,000. Phil O'Connor was signed from APIA for $4,000 and Larry Gaffney was bought for $9,000 from Brisbane City.

Jugoslovenska Scena

POBEDIO JE SRETNI TIM

Makedonija je postigla pobednički gol iz majstorske akcije u 67. minuti, ali pri toga je JUST imao dve idealne sene, koje nije iskoristio, što je skupo platio. Na papiru, prema sastavima timova, JUST je trebao da dozivi katastrofu kaši u Brčinu. Međutim, osim nešretnog Bruna Cozzelle, za koga je protivnički gol postao zacaran mazdijana, mlađi igrači i Pavle Simić odlično su očekivali poveren pozao. PLAVA navala je bila Ahilova peta, jer joj nedostaje vještina da igrač za vodstvo duga predstavlja igrača koju je Janko Kamenec vise posao rešio. To je veliko blago koje JUST ima. Njegova neobična je zapazio kao trener srednjokolske reprezentacije. Viktorije, koja je postala šampion Australije. Ukoliko se očekuje mnogo vise.

Za mene je igrač utakmice bio mlađi Slobodan Stojčevski, za koga je Janko Kamenec vise posao rešio. To je veliko blago koje JUST ima. Njegova neobična je zapazio kao trener srednjokolske reprezentacije. Viktorije, koja je postala šampion Australije. Ukoliko se očekuje mnogo vise.

PLAVI putuju Wollongong, gde igraju protiv poslednjeg

ne uobičajenog događaja.

JUST očekuje pojačanje za svoju jelovu navalu iz Jugoslavije i sa Tasmanijom. Oni ne mogu napraviti cude preko noći, ali će svakako povratiti izgubljeno poverenje u svoje sposobnosti i mogućnosti.

Bio bi veliki greh ako ne bi spomenuli publiku, koja je stvorila praznični atmosferu na JUST-ovom igralištu, koje ne pamti ovuči posetu. Ljudi su se salili i zadirkivali, ali samo u granicama prijateljnosti. Svi su na kraju priznali da je pobedio svrili tim, iako se nije ništa očito da je rezultat bio obrok, osim uslijed glave, koju je igrač učinio.

Makedonija je sa ovom pobedom prešla u gornji dom Philips lige, što je vrlo važan faktor za sledeće utakmice.

Iduce nedelje Makedonija je domaćin protiv Cibere, koja je nesigurno startovala. Crveno-crni su favorit, jer igraju na svom igralištu.

PLAVI putuju Wollongong, gde igraju protiv poslednjeg

kluba na tabelli, koga moraju pobediti da ga ne bi zamenili na tome neugodnom mjestu.

KUP METALINTA LIGE FERNET-BERNARD GULLY - ALTONA GATE 0:3 (0:1). Biće to prava kupa utakmica, bez lepoti i kombinacije, za koju se Altona Gate bolje primenila i zaslužno pobedila. Strelci: Con Ignatia, Bill Dimovski i Lube Spasavski. Sastav Altona Gate: Kosta Dimopoulos, Stivo Dimovski, Jimmy Dervisovski, Dragi Naumovski, Jorco Serovad (Dusko Maseljović od 46. minuta), Bill Dimovski, Cane Zdravovski, Con Saria, Vlado Kotavski, Con Ignatia, Lube Spasavski. Iduce subote, 20. marta, Altona Gate igra protiv Frankonija na svom igralištu, Pavlović je učinio prvi pogodak u historiji.

R/ SRBIJA-UNITE 4:1 na jedanaestercu, posto se igra zavrsila, posle produžetka od 20 minuta, neraseno 0:0. U produžetku je bio heroj veteran Milan Cvijić, koji je odbranio dva penala, a u sam početku jedan. Nije učinio gol, ali je posle utakmice, iznet na rukama od razdragnih navijača zajedno sa ostalim igračima. Bez prvočinka, Srbija je mogla da pobedi u regularnom delu igre, ali je imala neškušnu napadac. Pored Milana Cvijića vrlo dobro su igrali Dragan-Jimmy Millsavlević i Tibor Hodžić. Pre utakmice upucan je telegram bratskom klubu Avail u Sidneju, u kom mu se cestita 15 godina učesnog rada na sportskom polju.

MELBOURNE-DRUGI TIM J.U.S.T.-a 2:1 (1:0). Plevi su igrali u klasu, ali u poslednjoj je pobedi iz tri setovi predstavljajuši Cirkus na krvi za golove, iako je kod drugog ispušteni loptu, koju je bravurno odbranio. Sa 4 do neiskusnih igrača JUST nije mogao da iskoristi svoju teoretsku nadmoćnost, dok je Zeljko Miholčić cuvao pola tuceta igrača, rako da nije mogao doći do izražaja. Jedini je Milan Cvijić, koji je odbranio dva penala, a u sam početku jedan. Nije učinio gol, ali je posle utakmice, iznet na rukama od razdragnih navijača zajedno sa ostalim igračima. Bez prvočinka, Srbija je mogla da pobedi u regularnom delu igre, ali je imala neškušnu napadac. Pored Milana Cvijića vrlo dobro su igrali Dragan-Jimmy Millsavlević i Tibor Hodžić. Pre utakmice upucan je telegram bratskom klubu Avail u Sidneju, u kom mu se cestita 15 godina učesnog rada na sportskom polju.

BROADMEADOWS-DRUGI TIM MAKEDONIJE 7:1 (2:0). Protiv lakušnog domaćina, koji je igrao suvišno ostro na svom nepravom terenu, mlađi igrači Makedonije nisu se mnogo trudili. Tek prekraj igre su mlađi zaigrali i preko Con Stoykova postigli pogodani gol. Najbolji igrači: Jimmy Belevski, Arthur Christov i Con Stoyković. Prvi gol drugog divizije, koji je igrao u subotu, je bio začinjajući, drugi tih Makedonije dočekuje. Melburn je na svom igralištu 2. Connor Radford i Broadhurst Ave., Reservoir, My., 18 B. 3. Očekuje se da drugi tim Makedonije bude poljasm sa nekolicinama igrača, koji su sa uspehom branili crveno-crne boje u prosloju prevenutu.

KUP PROVIZIONALNE LIGE BERWICK CITY-ALTONA UNITED/VOJVODINA 6:1 (4:0). Pogodan gol postigao Andrija Mernik u drugom poluvremenu, kada se sa zaksanom produbila navala Volvodine, koja je preko promazala bez broj idealnih prilika. Sastav Volvodine: Stipe Pečić, Tony Dimovski, Danijel Dimovski (Danijel Balenović), Vlastav Pitra, Josip Pavic, Paul Gallo, Andrija Mornik, Jano Sklenar, Adam Millar, Jano Gedejovski, Boby Dimitrijević (Misa Gravček). Slediće subote Volvodina je gost Monbalka za prevenstvo treće provizionalne lige.

SPRINGVALE UNITED WEST MELBOURNE 3:2 (2:1). Strelci: George Kain, Stevan Janjic i Milenko Culibrk iz jedanaestercu. Sastav Springvale: Stipe Mandić, Djura Slavčev, Stevan Janjic, Nemanja Šipka, Milenko Culibrk (Edin Šubers Zukic od 60. minuta), Nenad Dragović, Dragoslav Jelić, Goran Veljović (Ivo Francetić od 50. minuta), Zlatko Kain. Iduce subote 20. marta Bratstvo/Jedinstvo igra protiv Ascot Uniteda za prevenstvo treće provizionalne lige na svom igralištu u Keysborough, Lot 16 Perry Road.

CLARINDA-HAWKSBURN 0:3 (0:2). Strelci: Joe Sebo 2 i Jene Kaim, koji se vratio u igru.
